ERNIE SHORE BEATS MARQUARD IN FIRST GAME OF WORLD SERIES BETWEEN RED SOX AND DODGERS

BRAVES' FIELD, BOSTON, October 7.—Carrigan's Red Sox today defeated the Brooklyn National Leaguers in the first game of the series to decide the base ball championship of the world.

The umpires came upon the field at 1:55 o'clock and immediately conferred with the field captains and managers of both clubs.

The batteries announced for Boston were Shore and Cady, for Brooklyn Marquard and Meyers.

First Inning.
Brooklyn—Myers fouled out to Cady.
Daubert struck out.
Stengel went out, Janvrin to Hoblitzell.
Shore pitched only seven balls. Boston—Hooper struck out and Janvrin also fanned.
Walker tripled to center.
Hoblitzell was out, Cutshaw to Daubert.

Second Inning.
Brooklyn—Wheat scratched an infield single toward first.
Cutshaw hit into a double play, Janvrin to Scott to Hoblitzell.
Mowrey walked.
Olson struck out.
Boston—Lewis walked.
Gardner bunted safely, Lewis going to second.
Scott sacrificed, Meyers to Cutshaw, Lewis going to third and Gardner to second.
Cady was purposely walked, filling the bases.
Shore struck out.
Hooper flied out to Myers, who made the catch after a long run.

Third Inning.
Brooklyn—Meyers went out, Scott to Hoblitzell.
Marquard was a strike-out victim.
Myers singled over the middle bag.
Daubert struck out on three pitched balls. It was the second time he had fanned.
Boston—Janvrin struck out for the second time, Meyers throwing him out at first.
Walker struck out, the third strike cutting the heart of the plate.
Hoblitzell drove a long liner to right for three bases.
Hoblitzell scored on Lewis' hot two-bagger to left.
Lewis was picked off second, Meyers to Olson.
One run.

Fourth Inning.
Brooklyn—Stengel singled along the left field foul line.
Wheat drove a long hit to right field fence for three bags, scoring Stengel.
Cutshaw flied out to Hooper, who made a line throw to Cady, who touched Wheat out as he slid into the plate.
Mowrey went out, Janvrin to Hoblitzell.
One run.
Boston—Gardner struck out.
Scott flied to Wheat, who made a pretty catch.
Cady walked for the second time.
Shore fouled out to Meyers.

Fifth Inning.
Brooklyn—Gardner threw out Olson at first.
Meyers got a three-base hit when Walker lost his high fly in the sun, the ball going to the center-field fence.
Janvrin threw out Marquard at first, Meyers being held at third.
Myers popped to Scott.
Boston—Hooper got a two-base hit when Myers completely lost his fly in the sun. The sun shone directly in the eyes of the center and right fielders.
Janvrin sacrificed, Mowrey to Cutshaw, Hooper moving to third.
Hooper scored on Walker's single past Mowrey.
Marquard almost caught Walker off first. Carrigan claimed a ball, but Umpire Connolly would not allow it.

Hoblitzell went out to Daubert, unassisted, Walker going to second. Mowrey took Lewis' grounder and touched Walker as he came into third.
One run.
Sixth Inning.
Brooklyn—Gardner tossed out Daubert at first.
Stengel struck out.
Janvrin tossed out Wheat, coming in fast and getting the Brooklyn batter's grounder on the grass.
Boston—Olson fumbled Gardner's grounder, and the batter was safe at first.
Scott forced Gardner, Mowrey to Cutshaw. Scott easily made first.
Scott went to second on a passed ball.
Cady walked. It was the third time he had gone to first base on balls.
Shore popped to Daubert.
Hooper popped to Olson.

Seventh Inning.
Brooklyn—Janvrin threw out Cutshaw, after fumbling his infield grounder.
Mowrey singled to right.
Olson hit into a double play, Gardner to Janvrin to Hoblitzell.
Boston—Janvrin got a double past Mowrey.
Olson fumbled Walker's grounder, and the batter was safe, Janvrin going to third.
Janvrin scored when Cutshaw made a bobble of Hoblitzell's grounder, the batter being safe at first and Walker going to second.
Lewis sacrificed, Daubert to Cutshaw, Walker going to third and Hoblitzell to second.
Cutshaw took Gardner's grounder, but his throw to the plate was too light to catch Walker as he slid over the plate. Hoblitzell went to third.
Meyers saved Marquard a wild pitch.
Hoblitzell scored on Scott's sacrifice fly to Stengel, Gardner remaining on first.
Cutshaw threw out Cady.
Three runs.

Eighth Inning.
Brooklyn—Scott threw out Meyers.
Johnston batted in place of Marquard.
Johnston singled over Janvrin's head.
Myers' grounder was deflected by Shore to Scott, who tossed to Janvrin, who then threw out Meyers at first, completing a double play.
Pfeffer was sent in to pitch for Brooklyn.
Boston—Shore flied out to Wheat.
Hooper walked.
On the hit-and-run play, Janvrin singled, Hooper going to third, and when Stengel threw wildly past second, Hooper scored, Janvrin going to second.
Walker drew a base on balls.
Hoblitzell flied out to Wheat, Janvrin holding second.
Lewis forced Walker, Olson to Cutshaw.
One run.

Ninth Inning.
Brooklyn—Daubert walked.
Stengel singled to right, Daubert going to second.
Wheat forced Daubert, Shore to Gardner, Stengel going to second.
Cutshaw was hit by a pitched

ONE OF THE HEROES OF TODAY'S GAME.

CLARENCE W. WALKER, OUTFIELDER, BOSTON.

ARMED GERMAN SUBMARINE ARRIVES AT NEWPORT, R. I.; ITS PURPOSE KEPT SECRET

NEWPORT, R. I., October 7.—The German submarine U-53 from Wilhelmshaven arrived in the harbor this afternoon. She crossed the ocean in seventeen days.

The U-53 is a man-of-war, flies the flag of the German navy and has a single gun mounted on her deck.

Anchors in Outer Harbor.
The submarine anchored in the outer harbor two miles down the bay. A representative of the Associated Press was allowed to go aboard and learn the vessel's story.

The U-53 will go outside the harbor for anchorage during the night.

No Supplies Are Needed.
Her commander reported that he had not sighted any hostile craft on his voyage over, adding that the boat was plentifully supplied with provisions and fuel and that nothing would be taken aboard here.

Shortly after the submersible came in Commander Rose paid an official call upon Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight, commandant of the Narragansett Bay naval station, to whom he stated that he was preparing to leave port tonight.

Mail for German Ambassador.
The newspaper man who boarded the submarine was asked to take aboard a large batch of official mail for Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and this was forwarded this afternoon.

While not disposed to discuss the details of his voyage, Commander Rose said that he had a sufficient supply of food aboard to last for three months. Besides the commander, the vessel carries four officers and thirty-three men. The U-53 was escorted in the harbor by the United States submarine U-2.

Equipped With Wireless.
Commander Rose explained that the submarine, which is a regular war vessel, and equipped with wireless, had put in here only to deliver official mail for the German ambassador.

He declined to say whether he had been ordered to American waters to search for the German merchant submarine Bremen, long overdue on this side.

HUGE CROWD WATCHES GAME SHOWN ON STAR SCOREBOARD Shady Side of 11th Street Proves Popular Place for Thousands of Enthusiastic Washington Fans.

The Star's big electric base ball scoreboard was the magnet which reached out through space this afternoon and brought the first game of the world's series between the Red Sox and the Dodgers home to thousands of Washington fans, who crowded practically the whole street from building wall to building wall on the shady side of The Star building.

As early as 1 o'clock this afternoon men and the omnipresent "small boy" began to line up on the 11th street curbs opposite the Star scoreboard, eager and "up on toes" to witness the opening—via telegraph—of the initial contest on the Braves' Field in Boston.

Big Crowd Enthusiastic.
Clear and cool in Boston—fair skies in Washington. Weather conditions were as ideal here as they were where the contest was played, and from the enthusiasm of the cheering throngs which greeted the first movements of the game on the scoreboard shortly after 2 o'clock there was no doubt that seeing the game "on the shady side of 11th street" was almost as good as seeing the "real thing" itself.

keep the big crowd in front of the scoreboard in line, so enthusiastic were the "stay at home" fans this afternoon. But the crowd was out for a good time; "grouches" were few and far between, and everybody was happy. Every play of the big game was graphically depicted for the fans on The Star's board. As the lights gleamed up and the bell rang, showing every phase of the contest in Boston, the watchers got more and more excited, greeting every play with cheers.

Boston Slight Favorite.
Of course, every watcher had his hopes pinned upon one or other of the teams, but while the Boston team seemed to be a shade in the lead for popular favor with the local fans, there were hundreds to cheer every favorable play of the National League team. It was a happy, comfortable crowd which streamed away in all directions from The Star building at the conclusion of the game, testifying numerically and audibly to the great hold which the "great American game" has on the sport-loving instincts of Washingtonians and to the efficient and satisfactory manner in which the big scoreboard brought today's game from Boston to Washington "true to life."

NOTES AND SIDELIGHTS ON PLAYS IN INITIAL CONTEST FOR TITLE

By J. ED GRILLO.

BRAVES' FIELD, BOSTON, October 7.—Carrigan sprung a surprise and sent Ernie Shore in to pitch in the opening game in the world series. Robinson announced Marquard and Chief Meyers.

The Red Sox took batting practice against Pennock, Jones and Gregg, while the Dodgers batted against Mails, the left-hander.

Every available space in the immense stand was occupied, while a thousand or more were behind the low fence in deep center, standing.

Shore in Splendid Form.

Shore appeared to be in splendid form at the outset. He retired Meyers on a foul to Cady, struck out Daubert on three pitched balls and retired Stengel on an easy grounder to Janvrin.

The tall southerner had on exhibition a lot of speed, and his famous fade-away. Marquard struck out Hooper and Janvrin. With one strike on him, Walker tripled to left center. Hoblitzell ended the inning with a grounder to Cutshaw, who tossed him out to Daubert.

Wheat started the second inning with a slow one to Hoblitzell, which he beat out to first. Cutshaw made no effort to sacrifice, and hit into a double play, Janvrin to Scott to Hoblitzell. Shore then walked Mowrey, but struck out Olson.

Three On; None Scored.
The Red Sox had three men on, with one out, but failed to score. Lewis walked to open the inning, and Gardner's clever bunt in front of the plate allowed him to reach first in safety. Scott sacrificed to Chief Meyers and was out to first. Then Marquard purposely walked Cady. Shore fanned and Meyers pulled down Hopper's long fly in deep center.

After Meyers and Marquard had been retired in the third, H. Meyers singled to center, but Daubert, for the second time, struck out.

Brooklyn's Rally Cut Short.

After Marquard struck out Janvrin and Walker, Hoblitzell had two to two, and hit for three bases, scoring when Lewis hit the first ball pitched for a double along the left field foul line. Meyers and Olson caught Lewis napping off second, after Gardner had two strikes called on him.

A remarkable catch and throw by Harry Hooper out the Dodgers' rally to one run. With Wheat on third, Cutshaw hit a short liner to right field, and by a remarkable sprit Hooper came forward, picked the ball off his shins and made a perfect throw to Cady, nailing Wheat at the plate. Janvrin followed with a splendid pick-up over second of Mowrey's grounder, and ended the inning, which had served to tie the score. Both Stengel and Wheat hit Shore hard on first ball pitched.

Mowed Down by Marquard.
Marquard struck out six of the Red Sox in the first four innings. Hooper and Janvrin were his victims in the first, Shore in the second and Janvrin and Walker in the third and Gardner in the fourth.

Chief Meyers hit to left center for three bases in the fifth, after Olson had been retired by Gardner and Hoblitzell. Marquard and H. Meyers, however, failed to bring him home, Marquard going out, from second to first, and Meyers popping to Scott.

Red Sox Score in Fifth.
Luck favored the Sox to the extent of a run in their half of the fifth. Hooper hit a little fly to center which should have been an easy out, but H. Meyers couldn't see the ball for the sun and it went for a double.

Janvrin sacrificed Hooper to third and Walker singled to left, scoring him. Hoblitzell was retired at first, unassisted, and Walker was retired when Lewis hit a grounder to Mowrey, who touched Walker.

Dodgers Retired in Order.
Shore, for the second time in the game, retired the Dodgers in order in the sixth, when Daubert was thrown out by Gardner, Stengel fanned and Janvrin threw out Wheat.

Marquard had to pitch good ball to prevent trouble in the sixth. Gardner got a life when Olson fumbled his grounder. Scott forced him, however, third to second, and a passed ball put Scott on second. Marquard took no chances with Cady, and walked him for the third time, and Shore popped up to Daubert, while Hooper popped up to Olson.

Double Play Saves Shore.

Another double play by the Red Sox came to Shore's rescue in the seventh, with one out. Mowrey singled to right, then Olson hit to Gardner, and he and Janvrin made a fast double play with Hoblitzell, retiring the side.

NEW FUNGO HITTING RECORD.

Schneider Makes Walsh and Mitchell Look Like Bunters.

At the annual field day exercises held at Cincinnati October 1 in connection with the closing game of the season, Pete Schneider, a pitcher on the Cincinnati team, won the long distance fungo hitting contest by batting a ball 427 feet and 6 inches. This is the authentic record for fungo hitting, though even a better record is claimed. Five years ago in a field day contest at Comiskey Park in Chicago Ed Walsh of the White Sox batted a ball 419 feet and one-half inch. The best record for fungo hitting up to that time was credited to Mike Mitchell, who while an outfielder with Cincinnati, in a field day meet at Cincinnati, in 1907, batted a ball 413 feet and 8½ inches. This record, claimed, but not authenticated, is credited to Larry Miller, outfielder, who had a trial with Brooklyn, who in June of this year, while playing with Winnipeg in the Northern League, is said to have batted a ball 425 feet and 2 inches.

JACK BARRY AS MANAGER.

May Replace Bill Carrigan at Head of Red Sox.

If Bill Carrigan sticks to his intention to retire from the Boston Red Sox management his successor will be Jack Barry, says the New York Evening Sun. Like Carrigan Barry is a graduate of Holy Cross College, Worcester. He is a smart player, popular with his teammates, and it is understood that President Leland Hooper will place a successful manager of the team. Donovan, who was mentioned for the position, has decided to remain in charge of the champion Buffalo International.

Cobb in the Movies.

The final series of the season at St. Louis between Browns and Tigers furnished an added attraction. Ty Cobb had been engaged to play the hero role in a moving picture play, and the diamond scenes of the play were taken at the St. Louis ball park. One of the climaxes had Cobb making a home run and then being congratulated by the heroine, a beautiful young thing by the way, from a box seat.
